

Gender Review of National Adaptation Plan (NAP) Documents

As part of its ongoing initiative on gender-responsive NAP processes, the NAP Global Network has undertaken a systematic review of NAP documents posted on the UNFCCC's NAP Central to assess the integration of gender considerations.

The document reviews explored how gender considerations have been addressed in the documents, as well as how women are positioned. It is important to note that most of the documents do not include much detail on the process undertaken to develop the NAP document or on strategies for implementation and M&E. Consequently, a lack of evidence in the document does not necessarily mean that gender hasn't been considered in a particular aspect of the NAP process—it may simply indicate a lack of documentation or that there is additional work to be done to elaborate on particular aspects of the plan.

Below is a summary of the review of Togo's NAP document.

Country	Togo
Document reviewed	Plan National d'Adaptation aux Changements Climatiques du Togo (2017)
Gender and/or women referenced?	Yes
Summary of gender references	Gender sensitivity is identified as a principle for the plan, and gender is considered as a cross-cutting issue. The plan notes that gender mainstreaming in implementation will increase the sustainability and impact of adaptation actions by reducing vulnerability and building resilience while also reducing social inequalities.
Gender concepts referenced	Gender equity Gender-based discrimination
Context for reference to gender	Guiding principle Cross-cutting issue
Positioning of women	As a group that is particularly vulnerable to climate change As beneficiaries of adaptation actions As stakeholders in adaptation planning processes As agents of change
